The chart at Appendix 1 identifies which Plaintiffs correlate to which Record Company Plaintiff group or Music Publisher Plaintiff group. The witness disclosures above apply to all individual Plaintiffs within each respective group. For example, the witnesses disclosed above for Sony Music Entertainment apply to the eight (8) individual record company plaintiffs associated with Sony Music Entertainment in Appendix 1.

Plaintiffs reserve the right to rely on any persons or entities identified in Defendants' Initial Disclosures (and any supplements thereto); any persons or entities identified in any party's discovery responses; and any person or entity deposed in this action. Plaintiffs reserve the right to supplement this identification of persons or entities based on information obtained during discovery and/or through their ongoing investigation into the matters relevant to this action.

B. Disclosures Pursuant to Rule 26(a)(1)(A)(ii)

A copy—or a description by category and location—of all documents, electronically stored information, and tangible things that the disclosing party has in its possession, custody, or control and may use to support its claims or defenses, unless the use would be solely for impeachment

The following categories of documents may be used by Plaintiffs to support their claims or defenses:

- Copyright registrations of Plaintiffs' works and/or other documents showing ownership or control of those works
- Documents concerning the infringement of Plaintiffs' copyrighted works
- Documents concerning Cox's knowledge of infringement of Plaintiffs' copyrighted works
- Documents to be produced by Cox concerning Cox's copyright abuse policies and procedures and Defendants' financials

Plaintiffs reserve the right to supplement this list of categories of documents based on information obtained during discovery and/or through their ongoing investigation into the matters relevant to this action.

C. Disclosures Pursuant to Rule 26(a)(1)(A)(iii)

A computation of each category of damages claimed by the disclosing party—who must also make available for inspection and copying as under Rule 34 the documents or other evidentiary material, unless privileged or protected from disclosure, on which each computation is based, including materials bearing on the nature and extent of injuries suffered

Plaintiffs are entitled to obtain damages to the fullest extent of the statutory law applicable to any violation of their rights. A more detailed computation of the amount of such damages is premature or not possible at this point because a significant amount of information bearing on the subject of damages—specifically including, but not limited to, the extent of Defendants' infringement and financial benefits received in connection therewith, including Defendants' financial documents—is in the possession, custody or control of Defendants, or is unknown. The Advisory Committee that drafted the initial disclosure provisions of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(a)(1)(C) acknowledged that initial disclosures regarding damages may not be feasible in certain cases such as this. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 26 Advisory Committee's Notes, 1993 Amendments ("Likewise, a party would not be expected to provide a calculation of damages which . . . depends on information in the possession of another party or person.").

Plaintiffs reserve the right to supplement these damages disclosures based on information obtained during discovery and/or through their ongoing investigation into the matters relevant to this action.

D. Disclosures Pursuant to Rule 26(a)(1)(A)(iv)

For inspection and copying as under Rule 34, any insurance agreement under which an insurance business may be liable to satisfy all or part of a possible judgment in the action or to indemnify or reimburse for payments made to satisfy the judgment.

Plaintiffs are unaware of any such agreement(s) at this time.
